THE WORLD MOVES

The world is moving fast. Are you moving with it? The chances are you can't succeed by the same methods which built success in your father's time.

Men who retired twenty years ago would be obliged to master new problems and learn new methods to adjust themselves to a new order of things.

The business world is now intent upon readjusting itself to peace conditions and meeting the problems of the reconstruction period. The world war has left none of us where he was.

The future has many problems. Money saved now will be needed to solve them. What are you doing

INVENTOR OF BLOOD

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., June 13.-Dr. Edward Lindeman, of New York city, thirty-eight years old, drowned while bathing here early today. It is believed that he was stricken with heart disease. His body was recovered several hours later. Dr. Lindeman was a delegate at the convention of the American Medical Association, now in session here.

ward E. Lindeman was considered an authority on the transfusion of blood. He invented the method of blood transfusion by which blood was taken from the arm of one person

Arthur E. Seymour, secretary of the Vashington Chamber of Commerce, oday referred the matter to officials of the national body, it being conidered a national issue and not a ocal one. Protest to the Railroad Administration was recently made by the Washington Association of Credt Men when they were refused the rate to the convention of the National Association of Credit Men in Detroit

The Railroad Administration anounced a reduction of one-third the egular first class fare to all conventions of a religious, educational, military, fraternal, or charitable nature where not less than 250 delegates were in attendance.

The National Association of Credit Men contended that their convention was of an educational nature, as it was for the purpose of broadening their members along lines of credit work. This association is composed of local organizations in 129 cities and all are joining in the protest against the alleged discriminatory Their contention was overruled by the Railroad Administration, who said that commercial conventions were absolutely barred.

The United States Chamber is expected to bring the matter to the attention of Director General Hines, and failing in this move, to have their counsel push the matter before the Interstate Commerce Commission, one of whose chief functions is to prevent railroads from making "dis-

Recognizing this right of self-determination as inherent in all peoples, said in his speech before Congress on April 2, 1917: "We shall fight for democracy-for the rights and liberties of small nations-for a universal dominion of right by such a concert of free peoples as shall bring peace and safety to all nations and make the world itself at last free."

Acting in conformity with this principle of self-determination, the Irish people proclaimed the Irish Republic in 1916, and in 1918, with an unparalleled political unanimity, declared for independence and for a republican form of government-a republic modeled after the United States of America and guaranteeing religious and political equality to all the people of Ireland.

What Enemies of America Lurk Behind the Bomb?

Why the bombs were placed on June 2d and what is the reason for this series of outrages making Democratic America resemble the Russia of the Czars and a career on the American bench as hazardous as a Muscovite Grand Duke, is the question which the American press has set itself to answer in earnest. These attempted assassinations may be "the work of a little group of desperate criminals," as the New York Globe has it, or "of a few individuals obsessed with Bolshevistic radical designs who do not recognize the utter absurdity of a reign of terror in this country," as the Philadelphia Record concludes. They may indicate, as Attorney General A. Mitchell Palmer says, "nothing but the lawless attempt of an anarchistic element of the population to terrorize the country and thus stay the hand of government," which "they have utterly failed to do."

In THE LITERARY DIGEST for June 14th, the leading article takes up this latest attempt to disturb the forces of law and order, and by quotation from newspapers and individuals of widely divergent opinions, presents the subject in all its phases.
